I think, should have strict rules because of the study in the classroom. The children are following the rules very important. They can't talk each other, everyday bring the books, don't eat in the classroom, don't eating or drinking, and don't go out with our permission from the classroom. The children are doing homework every time. Also, They are listening the teacher. They aren't talking or sleeping in the classroom most of the time. The children are following the rules but, a few students aren't following the rules because after school time at home the families aren't following.
Freedom to Children in Class

Children should have freedom in the classroom. Because the children have strict rules. They don’t know the rules. The teacher must teach good and bad things by simple methods like children music, through pictures and by toys. In the same way the teacher can teach the children by showing them cartoon films. Children enjoy cartoon films very much. On the other hand, the teacher must not allow the children to hit each other to shout and disturb the class. In some extent the teacher must punish the naughty children like by giving a lot of class work and home work. Children are easily cheatable. Therefore the teacher can reward for best children.
like candy, chocolate and toy. It makes other children to improve themselves to get the reward. In short, the teacher must give freedom for children in class in some extent.
I think for younger children it is better to have more freedom in the classroom, because it is the best way to let them to say what they think or what they want. If we have strict rules they're going to feel uncomfortable in the class. We are going to have a bad effect in their education. But on the other side we don't let them to hit each other or do something bad to others.

For teenagers it is better to have strict rules in classroom, because they are able to understand every situation. They must have respect for others, especially for teachers, because school is second family for them.
It is better to have a friendly relationship between students and teachers.

This is my opinion.
